

Hi.

Just a quick note to let you know that your Dead Antique House Fly has been mailed out and is on its way to you. I would have sent it airmail but he didn't feel like flapping his wings that much today.

He must be happy to be traveling by mail because as I was mailing him I could hear him singing. It sounded pretty good though he was a little flat. I hope you will enjoy your fly. He will be greatly missed here. He is like a son to me. He is the perfect child I never had, he eats almost nothing, he doesn't play loud music at night, he never argues back when I tell him what to do, and he is a good student because up until now he always kept his nose in a book night and day.

I think he is a little worried about going to California though. I think he is afraid he will get framed there. He has been in this family a long time so take good care of him. I am going to have to end this because I can't see through the tears that have filled my eyes.
